

Disclaimer Statement

The contents of this handbook are presented as a matter of information only and are not intended to cover all policies, plans and procedures of Manpower. The plans, policies and procedures described are not conditions of employment. Manpower reserves the right to modify, add, revoke, suspend, terminate, or change any or all plans, policies, or procedures of the company, in whole or in part, at any time with or without notice. The language in this booklet is not intended to create, nor is it to be construed, a contract between Manpower and any one or all of its employees. Your employment with Manpower is employment-at-will. That is, your employment can be terminated at any time by you or Manpower.

Unless otherwise stated in this handbook, the contents of this handbook are applicable to temporary employees of Manpower (also known as employees, wagemaster employees, associates and contractors) who are referred to throughout this handbook as employees. Manpower employees are individuals who are eligible for temporary or contract work assignments to support or supplement a client's or Manpower's workforce during time periods of, including but not limited to, employee absences, temporary skills shortages, seasonal workloads, and special long- and short-term assignments or projects. This handbook does not apply to any other classification of employee at Manpower including colleagues.

The information contained in this Employee Handbook is confidential and proprietary to Manpower. The information is for internal use only and may not be distributed outside of Manpower. Any use of the third party contact information contained herein does not violate your obligation to keep the contents of the Employee Handbook confidential.